PLASTIC OMNIIUM EXPANDS THE SCOPE OF ITS OPERATIONS

Compagnie Plastic Omnium has received authorization from the European competition authorities to acquire Solvay’s 50% stake in Inergy Automotive Systems, bringing its share in the company to 100%. The world’s leading supplier of fuel systems and fuel tanks, Inergy Automotive Systems expects to generate revenue of about €1.1 billion in 2010.

Combined with organic revenue growth of nearly 20% in 2010, the transaction will allow Compagnie Plastic Omnium to expand the scope of its operations, with pro forma revenue of close to €3.5 billion in 2010, compared to €2.5 billion in 2009.

Backed by 77 production plants around the world, the Company’s Automotive Division is making strong market share gains in China, India, Russia, Thailand, South Korea and South Africa.

Compagnie Plastic Omnium is strengthening its strategic commitment to develop independently and to consolidate its global leadership positions in its core Automotive and Environment businesses. The Company has reinforced its growth potential by leveraging its capacity for innovation, acquiring new customers and developing a worldwide production base.
